Category:CAD softwareQ: Avoiding negative time function in time series I try to create a time series with the following values: jan 1 2016 -> 31Dec 16 jan 2 2016 -> 31Dec 16 jan 3 2016 -> 31Dec 16 jan 4 2016 -> 31Dec 16 jan 5 2016 -> 31Dec 16 jan 6 2016 -> 31Dec 16 ... I want to avoid "negative time"-values. i.e. the result should be: 16.01.2016 -> 30.12.16 Thats why I define my own (further) my timestep to be 1 hour. The timestep is a function of an NPS. Is this a good approach? Are there other solutions? Or do I miss something obvious? A: Instead of defining your timestep to be 1 hour, do it based on the NPS and you don't need any custom function. Example, you have NPS of 5 so your timestep is 1/5 hour so it's Jan 01/16->Jan 31/16. C++ #include #include int main() { using namespace std::chrono; int n = 5; int now = 0; auto seconds = chrono::duration_cast(now).count(); for (int nps = 1; nps (now + chrono::duration_cast(nps * seconds).count()); cout (now).count

Lethal damage in the cell is mainly due to reactive intermediates formed during metabolism of purines and other nucleotides and to reactive oxygen radicals. N(2)-Allyl-guanine (AIG) is a stable analog of guanine that is transformed by oxidation into 8-oxoguanine, a known toxic lesion. This report shows that AIG in the presence of either glutathione (GSH) or cysteine (CYS) is metabolized by O(2) to form thioaldehyde-GSH (AGSH) and cysteinyl thioaldehyde-cysteine (f678ea9f9e
